Not illustrated. 1904 Excerpt: . . . letter to Mr. Leslie I merely gave the condensed gist of our little confab at Agnews. Whistler began about the Academy in referring to some Winter Exhibition of Old Masters, in those very words, instead of his old-time joke, the annual atonement, which was good invention and annual amusement to all and sundry. And then, if I remember rightly, How is my old friend the President (They were fellow-students in the old Paris days.) I said he was about the same; and then, Ah! Jimmie, if you had only behaved yourself, ze might have been asking after lzis old friend the President. Instead of drawing down the old-time elements on my head (always more or less refreshing), he only murmured, Who knows Now, if any one knowing Whistler and me should go about thinking me serious in imagining that he would make a good j)resident--even of an East End boxing club--such person lives in dense error. Dirtaar, writ large, and with full powers to chastise the erring, would be more to his measure. I should be very sorry to be under such presidency, except to aid and abet him in making it sultry for all and sundry who asserted their right to object to anything from the rostrum. And as to the behaviour--well, amusing as it was at its best time--it was not always serious and dignified enough for academic presidentship. Fancy the President of a Royal Society sailing about at large, knocking down and...
